

Insane Monster Parents!!!

There are lots of Monster Parents in Japan these days. I wrote my opinion about these insane people.

I don't think ^{there is} there's a perfect parent. However, a good parent is, ^{someone who} they think about their child in a balanced way. If they think too much about their child, they might become like a Monster Parent, we will talk about them later in this essay. If they don't think about their child at all, they can't call themselves a parent. A bad parent is a parent who is too strict and violent to their child. Violence is never good for a child. My friend told me that if the parent is too strict and violent, the child will do the same thing to their own child. So maybe parents have changed from our grandparent's days.

Modern parents think that they want to stay young and want to do young things even when they get old. However, in their grandparents' day, they thought they had to be a parent and didn't think too much about staying young. Everybody wants to stay beautiful, but modern parents think about that too ^{much} many these days. They have become more childish than in their grandparents' days. That's why I think there are lots of monster parents these days. They complain to school a lot because they're still childish. So I think there were fewer monster parents in the grandparents' days. Why are monster parents increasing these days?

Monster Parents are parents who really love their child so much that they can only think about their child ^{all the} every time. The birthrate is decreasing, so their love goes straight to their few children. I think. They demand school, ^{complain to the about} lots of unbelievable things just for their child. I think these people are a little ^{bit} too insane. The world is not only for them, so they need to think about other people more. I think they're too selfish ^{as well} too. The teachers will not be able to deal to all of these demands from the Monster Parents. I think these parents should really think seriously about this problem, and be aware of this. What if my classmate ^{becomes} be a parent someday? I imagined about that in the next paragraph. ^{Let's see what they might be like,}

How about Emi and Lisa and Kay. I think Emi will let her child to do lots of things ^{but she will keep an eye on them.} moderately. I think she will let her child ^{sometimes} to study moderately, and play ^{sometimes} moderately. I think Lisa will let her child to do anything that the child wants, except bad things though. I think her child will be fashionable. I think Kay will be a reliable parent. I think she will let her child ^{to} study when they have to study.

Anyway, I don't want a monster parent and I also don't want to be like that. The reason is because I'll be embarrassed. If my parents came to school and said something ^{that was} nonsense, I ^{would} want to runaway.

^{very good} make some small changes ^{well done!!}
